Opportunity knocks as Denham looks beyond conventional construction

LandCorp is offering builders a chance to make a mark at its Denham residential estate by showcasing quality quick build housing options in the Gascoyne.

Regional Business Manager Peter McNally said ten quality lots were now available and a diverse range of homes would be considered, from traditional brick housing to quality pre-fabricated kit homes, in order to develop the coastal community of Denham and beyond.

“World Heritage listed Denham is popular with visitors, sea changers and holiday makers who love the relaxed coastal living and natural beauty of the Shark Bay region,” he said.

“We are offering a rare opportunity for innovative builders from all over Australia to develop display homes in a region that has sometimes unfairly gained a reputation for its difficulty to build.

“This is a great chance for builders to promote their product while proving that quick build, good quality affordable housing in the Gascoyne region is possible.

“We hope that this scheme will encourage potential purchasers to think beyond conventional housing methods and consider pre-fabricated homes, and alternative building materials as a cost effective and sustainable option.”
